We believe these seminars will prepare and support graduate students and researchers who are active in the field with the newest research conducted worldwide. Moreover, they provide opportunities for academic members to get acquainted and find possible future collaborations.

The seminars are planned monthly, on every last Tuesday of the month, via Zoom in the late afternoon (Europe), morning (US), or evening (Asia/Pacific).

Our first speaker is Prof. Stefan Nickel, Chair of Discrete Optimization and Logistics, and a Director of the Institute for Operations Research at Karlsruhe Institute of Technology (KIT), on May 31, 2022, at 16:00 (CEST). More info about Stefan can be found here:
